The following is a story about the rigors of operating the plant in Gateway's next production "Little Shop of Horrors." Scott Galbraith has been contracted to manipulate "Audrey II" for the Gateway Production. This story was taken from the Daytona Beach News-Journal where Galbraith was interviewed while manipulating the plant for Seaside Music Theatre.

Man Behind The Plant
Scott Galbraith Grows With His Part

By JUDY LIBERI

When the curtain falls on Sunday's two performances of Seaside Music Theater's "Little Shop of Horrors," there will be loud applause for a cast member, unseen until he takes his bow.

Scott Galbraith, 21, is the man behind - or more precisely inside - the man-eating plant, Audrey II, around which the plot evolves.

Not that Scott hasn't already garnered his share of praise as plant manipulator - as he put it, "the most physically demanding" role of his young career.

WHILE STILL in Chicago, Galbraith began preparing for his "Little Shop" role, taking in the show there and going backstage to see how the plants were manipulated. The rights to the script include use of these specific props.

First stop after arriving here was The Spa at Indigo, where manager Mike McCaffrey and his crew designed a program for Galbraith to strengthen muscles, particularly in the upper arms. Workouts were one and a half to two hours, every other day at first, then as rehearsals allowed. He went through the whole Nautilus program plus free weights and used the treadmill and exercise cycle.

"I hurt for the first couple of days," Galbraith admitted.

He added he was grateful for all the swimming he did as a boy that helped with conditioning and the dancing demands of "Guys and Dolls" helped build his stamina.

His plant manipulations begin in the first act as hand puppetry, when a small, potted Audrey II dances on the windowsill of the skid row florist shop. From there, the plant grows in size and scope as the 6 foot Galbraith gives it lifelike movements and a personality, thanks to some imaginative touches like specific postures and even crossed legs (tendrils).

THE TWO LARGER versions of Audrey II require the most rigorous movements, of course. In the first, Galbraith is belted into a car-like seat where his arms do most of the work. In the largest prop - 6 feet long and 9 feet high - he's strapped in with his back and arms manipulating the plant's huge mouth. A bamboo frame gives shape to the large, green pods made of bouncy foam, which Galbraith said, helps in opening and closing the mouth.

The few minutes between the final scenes leave just enough time to towel off and do some stretching exercises before he hops from one plant to the other.

"I go through a bottle of Gatorade each show, and that never seems enough," he joked, calling his in-plant environment, "very warm, wet and dark."

It's also strange to be unable to see the action on stage, Galbraith said, and to learn all the dialogue, but never say a word. Harry L. Burney III provides the delightful, bass-baritone voice for Audrey II, so he and Gal-

Audrey II was a mere hand puppet in Act I.

Galbraith works out with weights.

braith rehearsed as a team from the start.
"The dialogue is led by me, and the music by Harry, and we learned to play off one another," Galbraith said.
LOOKING BACK on the overall SMT season, the affable young man considers it the culmination of an exciting year.
And would he jump in again to repeat his role in "Little Shop?"
"Sure!" he quipped. "I plan to put my card in with the props when they move on to the next theater."

August 17th - September 4th

This playfully gruesome musical set downtown on "skid row" where a strange and wonderful little plant from outer space turns into a comical carnivore. Seymore, the poor nerdy florist's assistant is promised fame and fortune, only if he keeps his ever growing botanic wonder in "food." This turns into more than Seymore bargained for. It's all in good fun, not to be taken seriously. LITTLE SHOP OF HORRORS is a comedy that leaves the audience feeling like the plant in between victims — ravenous for more.."

She brings an extensive background in dance having trained with Gus Giordano in Paris and Chicago. Her favorite roles range from Cassie in A CHORUS LINE to Gooch in MAME to Ado Annie in OKLAHOMA to The Kid in ROAR OF THE GREASEPAINT. Her most recent role is that of real-life wife to Actor Gary Marachek.

ROBERT CRAIG DAWSON (Chantal) just finished a successful run of 42nd STREET in St. Petersburg and a year-long stint in the Busch Gardens German Show. Other shows include CAN CAN, EVITA, GEORGE MI and A CHORUS LINE. A graduate of Kent State University, Rob will be returning to school in the fall to obtain his master's degree in management and production.

DAVID ENRIQUEZ (Hanna) is pleased to be making his Gateway debut after a successful run as Arab in WEST SIDE STORY at Riverside Theatre. Prior to that he appeared as Angie in GYPSY and as Paul in A CHORUS LINE at the Encore Dinner Theatre. In addition to his theatre career, his love for dance led him to win Mr. Dance of Florida and second runner-up in the Mr. Dance of America competition in 1985.

GREGORY HENRY (Phaedra) is originally from Carlisle, Pennsylvania, and is a graduate of Penn State University. For the past four and a half years, he has lived and studied in New York City. His credits range from musical theatre, revues and industrials to concert work in music and dance. Greg has worked nationally as well as in the Caribbean and Europe, and is very happy to be appearing at the Gateway for the first time.

MICHAEL NelaBORIGE (Derma) has appeared in St. Petersburg productions of ANNIE, MY FAIR LADY, and in BARNUM as the White-Faced Clown. A native of the Midwest he holds an honors degree and B.S. in telecommunications from Ball State University. Prior to moving to Florida Michael worked in regional summer stock where his favorite roles included Bob in BEYOND THERAPY, Bill Calhoun in KISS ME, KATE! and the Sergeant in PIRATES OF PENZANCE. Michael is currently a dancer at Busch Gardens and enjoys reading, civilized sports, and a good mascara that doesn't run.

FRANK RUEZ (Lo Singh) a native Chicagoan, has recently been seen at the Riverside Theatre in Vero Beach in WEST SIDE STORY. He previously appeared with the Miami City Ballet in their recreation of George Ballanchine's THE PRODIGAL SON. He also performed in Bob Fosse's DANCIN' in the 1985 and 1986 National Touring Companies. His extensive Chicago dance training includes the Gus Giordano Dance Center, Lou Conte Dance Center, the Joe Hall Dance Company, and two years as a member of the Lynda Martha Dance Company. Frank fell in love with South Florida while performing in DANCIN' at the Burt Reynolds Dinner Theatre and has since made Miami his home.
